ANTHROPOLOGY

For Year 11 and 12

The Royal Anthropological Institute (RAI) hosts an educational website www.discoveranthropology.org.uk for anyone curious about anthropology. It has lots of information on where to study anthropology and career paths in this subject. The RAI is also running a free university taster day at the British Museum on Friday 19 June 2020. Programme and booking at www.londonanthropologyday.co.uk

CAREERS IN NATURAL SCIENCE

For All Year Groups

Scientists who can tackle society's most complicated problems by using different science disciplines are in huge demand and that's what a natural science degree teaches students to do. The SuccessAtSchool group have put together a guide to answer the following questions: What is a natural science degree? What would I study? What can I do with a natural science degree? Where does it lead? Natural science focusses on developing an understanding of the natural world and explores the natural world from several perspectives, including chemical, physical, mathematical, environmental and geological. UNIVERSITY OPEN DAYS

For Sixth Form

Most universities have available on line a guided tour of their campus usually led by students. Take a look at the university websites you're interested in and take a tour without leaving home!

COMPASSION AND ACTION

For All Year Groups

InvestIN Education was founded on the premise that young people should be excited about the future; a future that they can shape themselves. Amidst the problems caused by Covid-19 InvestIN is calling upon all ambitious young people to join their 'Compassion and Action Movement'. They are inviting students aged 12-18 to deliver the most inspiring and creative message of hope they can muster. Entries can be in any form: a video, mood board, poem, piece of art - whatever allows you to best express yourself! Entries should be based on a theme of 'Compassion and Action.' InvestIN judges will compile a shortlist of the best entries and compile a 'Compassion and Action' collage which will be circulated globally, with the names of the winners fully-credited. For each entry received InvestIN will make a donation to the World Health Organisation's Covid-19 Solidarity Response Fund. By contributing to this movement you will therefore help improve both mental and physical health, through messages of hope and assistance to experts who are working tirelessly to find solutions.
